Thomas Dodds is CEO at slashBlue, serving values-driven organizations with Technology Powering Purpose. He has been captivated by the power of technology since age 6 doing integer math on a computer. After years of misusing technology, he came to realize that how it is used matters. By carefully listening to clients, he realized there was a need for technology to be used to achieve a company's mission. Today, slashBlue provides Purpose-Powered Technology Consulting and Managed Services for clients who want to avoid the disappointment of technology and embrace it to power a purpose greater than themselves. In addition to living out his purpose at work, he is also a husband, father of five and actively serving at his church.
